Introduction

The federal pipeline oil spill response plan regulations (49 CFR 194) require operators to prepare and submit a response plan in order to minimize the harm caused to the environment due to the discharge of oil into or on any inland navigable waters of the United States or adjoining shorelines. This workshop will focus on multi-agency alignment, operator compliance, and participation in required drills and exercises. Additionally, attendees and commenters will be given the opportunity to provide suggestions and recommendations for possible changes to the oil spill response regulations.

Background

PHMSA wishes to gather information about the efficacy of the oil spill response plan regulations. PHMSA is aware that regulated entities and members of the public have requested greater direction and regulatory interpretation. PHMSA is also aware that its oil spill response plan regulations do not fully align with the regulations of other federal agencies that have been delegated jurisdiction under 42 U.S.C. 1321(j)(5). PHMSA is exploring ways to reduce redundancy, clarify language and improve efficacy of its oil spill response plan regulations.

PHMSA believes improving the response plan preparation and submission process is important for improving response actions, ensuring response capabilities, and minimizing harm to the environment. In particular, PHMSA is interested in collaboration with other jurisdictional federal agencies, operators, and oil spill response organizations.

Issued in Washington, DC, on March 24, 2016, under authority delegated in 49 CFR 1.97.

Alan K. Mayberry,
Deputy Associate Administrator for Policy and Programs.

(E) Preserving the environment;
(F) Preserving the existing transportation system.”

The FAST Act also requires that the strategic plan take into account research and development by other Federal, State, local, private sector and non-profit institutions.

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Research and Technology invites the public to provide comments to inform the development of the 5-year strategic plan for transportation Research, Development and Technology (RD&T). Comments should regard appropriate RD&T activities to meet the purposes and considerations listed in the FAST Act and/or emerging RD&T challenges, opportunities, and priorities that U.S. DOT RD&T should address over the next five years. In particular, comments may respond to any or all of the following questions:

1. What research strategies and priorities should the U.S. DOT adopt to achieve the primary purposes cited in the FAST Act?

2. How can the issues raised in the U.S. DOT document “Beyond Traffic 2045: Trends and Choices” be strategically addressed by RD&T activities over the next five years?

3. What emerging challenges or opportunities in transportation warrant additional Federal RD&T activities or investments?

4. What current and planned RD&T activities sponsored by the federal government should be continued or revised in the future?

5. What strategies could improve the cost-effectiveness of U.S. DOT research investments?

6. How can U.S. DOT best coordinate its RD&T activities with Federal, State, local, private sector, non-profit institutions, and international partners?

7. What knowledge gaps merit additional exploration by the USDOT?

For information about current U.S. DOT RD&T activities please visit the Department’s Web site at: <https://www.transportation.gov/research-and-statistics>.

The U.S. DOT RD&T Strategic Plan will present the Department’s strategy for responding to the trends and opportunities identified in Beyond Traffic 2045: Trends and Choices (www.transportation.gov/BeyondTraffic). Beyond Traffic examines the long-term and emerging trends affecting our Nation’s transportation system and the implications of those trends. It describes how demographic and economic trends, as well as changes in technology, governance, and our climate are affecting how people and goods travel today, and how they could affect travel in the future. Beyond Traffic provides a framework for identifying U.S. DOT RD&T priorities that will advance technologies and inform decisions regarding how we move, how we move things, how we move better, how we adapt, and how we align decisions and dollars.

Issued in Washington, DC, on March 23, 2016.

Gregory D. Winfree,

Assistant Secretary for Research and Technology.
