

the case with [identical changes previously adopted for] the NYMEX platinum and palladium futures contracts. Market participants should, at worst, be indifferent to the addition of a depository in Wilmington, Delaware. In reviewing the data, and in talking with various industry participants, many, in fact, would experience greater flexibility should Wilmington Trust be approved. Approval could also potentially benefit those users of the COMEX silver futures contract who choose to store metal for periods of time rather than remove it immediately from a depository. Consumers or traders who desire to transport silver out of the location in which they receive it would incur a $25 savings in withdrawal charges when removing silver lots from Wilmington Trust that would offset most or all of the difference in transportation costs for large shipments of silver.

In conclusion, other depository facilities located outside of New York City are indeed a part of the physical market for silver in the Northeast U.S., particularly Wilmington Trust. This can be seen by their use by a majority of participants in the silver industry * * *.
