Proposed Projects

1. Questionnaire Design Research Laboratory (QDRL), 1998-2000 (0920-0222—Revision). The QDRL conducts pretesting activities related to the development of NCHS and other Federal survey questionnaires, such as the National Health Interview Survey (NHIS). These activities mainly involve use of the cognitive interview, in which volunteer respondents ("laboratory subjects") are administered draft survey questions, and are asked to react to those questions. The cognitive interviewer notes sources of error in these questions, based on problems that subjects have in comprehending the questions and in attempting to recall the information requested. After several cycles of testing of small numbers of respondents (generally 10-12), and development of the questions between testing "rounds," the questionnaires are improved to the point to which they are ready for field testing and household administration. QDRL staff are also engaged in the conduct of general questionnaire design research, in which survey questions are administered to laboratory subjects using different phrasings, or under different administration modes (e.g., face-to-face versus telephone), in order to determine the optimal means for presenting the questions. These investigative pretesting activities are now routinely used by NCHS and by other survey organizations for testing and development purposes, and result in high data quality at a minimal cost, especially in terms of respondent burden.

The total cost to respondents of this information collection is $22,500 over the three years for which clearance is requested.

Proposed Project

1. Sun Protection for Children—New—Skin cancer is of increasing public health concern because of its increasing incidence. Ultraviolet radiation is the primary risk factor for skin cancers, and the risk of skin cancer appears to be increased with early life exposures to ultraviolet radiation. However, little information is available on sun protection for children. Therefore, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Control, Division of Cancer Prevention and Control, intends to conduct a survey on sun protection for children to monitor sun protection behaviors, develop health messages, and target populations for health education as part of the National Skin Cancer Prevention Education Program.

A representative sample of parents of children aged 6 months to 10 years, selected by random digit dialing, will be interviewed over the telephone. The information collected will include demographic information, parental knowledge and attitudes about skin cancer and sun protection, and sun protection for their children. The total annual burden hours are 2,594.
