Abstract: This information collection has an impact on State, Tribal, and local governments that wish to participate formally in the national historic preservation program and who wish to apply for Historic Preservation Fund grant assistance. The National Park Service uses the information to ensure compliance with the National Historic Preservation Act and government-wide grant requirements.

Respondents/Record Keepers: State, Tribal, and Local Governments.

Estimate of Burden: NPS estimates that the public reporting burden for this collection of information will average 9.06 hours per response and 0.60 hours per record, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed and reviewing the collection of information.

NPS reviews each State's program once every four years. NPS requires information from a local government when it applies for certification. NPS requires that each State maintain one record for each property in its inventory and one record per project for tracking its responses to Federal agency requests for State review. Pursuant to Section 101(d) of the National Historic Preservation Act, federally recognized Indian Tribes, after agreement with the National Park Service (NPS), may assume responsibilities specified in Section 101(b)(3) and therefore use related information collections.

Dry Tortugas National Park, FL

AGENCY: National Park Service, Interior.

ACTION: Notice of availability of the Record of Decision for the Final General Management Plan Amendment/Environmental Impact Statement, Dry Tortugas National Park, Florida.

SUMMARY: The U.S. Department of the Interior's National Park Service has signed a Record of Decision (July 27, 2001) for the Final General Management Plan Amendment for Dry Tortugas National Park. The plan is designed to afford a high level of protection to park resources and provide for appropriate types and levels of high quality visitor experiences. This will be accomplished through management zoning, establishing visitor carrying capacity, using commercial services to direct and structure visitor use, and instituting a permit system for private boaters. A wide range of recreational and educational opportunities will be available to visitors. Visitor experiences will be enhanced due to expanded access throughout the park and higher quality resources to enjoy.

Management zones will provide guidance for managing specific areas for desired resource condition and visitor experiences. The Historic/Adaptive Use zone (where Ft. Jefferson is located) will be the focus of the greatest visitor activities including guided tours, historical interpretation, bird watching, photography, picnicking, boating, snorkeling, scuba diving and recreational fishing. The Natural/Cultural zone will be managed to improve natural resource quality and allow visitors to experience remoteness and solitude with opportunities for swimming, scuba diving, recreational fishing and viewing wildlife. Visitors could enjoy natural resources with almost no facilities or services and experience the "vast expanse of sea and sky" characteristic of this remote National Park. The Research Natural Area zone will allow for protection of outstanding marine and terrestrial habitats, spawning fish species and pristine coral reefs. The use of anchors
