SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The PACA was enacted by Congress in 1930 to establish a code of fair trading practices covering the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables in interstate or foreign commerce. It protects growers, shippers, and distributors dealing in those commodities by prohibiting unfair and fraudulent trade practices.

The law provides a forum for resolving contract disputes and assessing damages against anyone who fails to meet contractual obligations. In addition, the PACA prohibits unfair trading practices in the fruit and vegetable industry and imposes sanctions against violating firms and firms' principals when violations of the law occur. The PACA also imposes a statutory trust that attaches to perishable agricultural commodities received by regulated entities, products derived from the commodities, and any receivables or proceeds from the sale of the commodities. The trust exists for the benefit of produce suppliers, sellers, or agents that have not been paid, and continues until they have been paid in full.

The PACA is enforced through a licensing system. All commission merchants, dealers, and brokers engaged in business subject to the PACA must be licensed. Those who engage in practices prohibited by the PACA may have their licenses suspended or revoked. Licensees must report principals, stockholders, home addresses, and business locations to allow for proper notification in the event of a commercial dispute. Sections 3 and 4 of the PACA (7 U.S.C 499c and 499d) and Sections 46.3 through 46.13 of the PACA regulations (7 CFR 46.3-46.13) establish the requirement for licensing and the type of information that must be reported.

The information collected and maintained in the PACA system of records is used to administer licensing provisions under the PACA, to adjudicate contract disputes, and to enforce the PACA and the PACA regulations. In accordance with Office of Management and Budget regulations (5 CFR part 1320) that implement the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. Chapter 35), the information collected and maintained by the PACA system of records was approved on October 5, 2004, and will expire on October 31, 2007.

This system maintains a database of PACA licensees, including personal and business information from individuals and entities licensed under the PACA to do business in the fruit and vegetable industry. The following information is contained in the system: Name, home address, Social Security number (SSN), and employer identification number.

In addition to the above information, this system tracks dates when licenses are due for renewal and automatically generates a renewal application, and if necessary, a reinstatement or termination notice of those licenses. Functions of this database include:

1. Adding a new customer to the database;
2. Editing or updating customer information;
3. Contacting a business about its need for a license;
4. Issuing a license;
5. Tracking of license fees;
6. Maintaining information on PACA reparation complaints;
7. Tracking violators;
8. Maintaining bankruptcy information;
9. Tracking surety bonds;
10. Tracking of complaint fees; and
11. Updating a customer's license status if the customer is found liable in a reparation complaint proceeding.

There is an inbuilt Query module that allows the user to query customers, its principals, and complaint information.

In addition to entering, tracking, and querying information, the user has the ability to print out a large number of documents, including items such as correspondence and complaint reports. Development of this system also included database backup and recovery and Internet security (Web-based application).

A "Report on an Updated System," required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(r), as implemented by OMB Circular A-130, was sent to the Chairman, Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs; the Chairman, House Committee on Government Reform; and the Acting Administrator, Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, of the Office of Management and Budget.

Dated: November 1, 2006.

Mike Johanns,
Secretary.
