

four other states and recommends that CBP should utilize other resources, apparently from the surrounding states, to better support Indianapolis.

Response: CBP is seeking to establish definitive geographic port limits to make the boundaries more easily identifiable to the public and to allow for uniform and continuous service to the extended area of Indianapolis, Indiana. This is a no-cost administrative measure and CBP will not need additional resources to implement the proposed boundary changes. As specified in the NPRM, the proposed changes will not result in changes to the workload or staffing levels at the port.

III. Conclusion

For the reasons discussed in the NPRM, CBP is extending the geographical limits of the port of entry of Indianapolis, Indiana, to include all the territory within the boundaries of Marion County, Indiana, as well as portions of the neighboring counties of Boone, Hendricks, and Johnson. The port of entry description of Indianapolis, Indiana, will be revised as proposed in the NPRM and set forth in the map included in the docket as “Attachment: Port of Entry of Indianapolis—Proposed Limits.” The revised port of entry description is also included in Section IV of this document. The description of the port limits of Indianapolis, Indiana in 19 CFR 101.3 will be revised to refer to this document, CBP Dec. 13–13.

IV. Port Description of Indianapolis, Indiana

The new port limits of Indianapolis, Indiana, are as follows:

In the State of Indiana, all of Marion County; that part of Boone County which is west of Interstate Route 65 and east of State Route 39; that part of Hendricks County which is east of State Route 39; and that part of Johnson County which is east of State Route 37, north of State Route 144, and west of Interstate Route 65.

V. Statutory and Regulatory Reviews

A. Executive Orders 12866 and 13563

DHS does not consider this rule to be a “significant regulatory action” under section 3(f) of Executive Order 12866, Regulatory Planning and Review, as supplemented by Executive Order 13563. The change is intended to expand the geographical boundaries of the Indianapolis, Indiana, port of entry and make the boundaries more easily identifiable to the public. There are no new costs to the public associated with this rule, and the rule does not otherwise implicate the factors set forth in section 3(f) of Executive Order 12866. Accordingly, this rule has not been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for review.

B. Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) requires federal agencies to examine the impact a rule would have on small entities. A small entity may be a small business (defined as any independently owned and operated business not dominant in its field that qualifies as a small business per the Small Business Act); a small not-for-profit organization; or a small governmental jurisdiction (locality with fewer than 50,000 people).

This rule merely expands the limits of an existing port of entry and does not impose any new costs on the public. Accordingly, we certify that this rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

VI. Signing Authority

The signing authority for this document falls under 19 CFR 0.2(a) because the extension of port limits is not within the bounds of those regulations for which the Secretary of the Treasury has retained sole authority. Accordingly, this final rule is signed by the Secretary of Homeland Security.
